Colours of time: French-based artist Agathe de Baillencourt will hold a solo exhibition titled Water, Colour, Recordings, at the Art Plural Gallery on her concept of Time

Pick of the Week

FRENCH Berlin-based artist Agathe de Baillencourt is no stranger to Singapore's art scene. On top of living in Singapore from 2002 to 2007, her work was also displayed at the first-ever Singapore Biennale in 2006.

Although she has lived mostly in Berlin since then, the artist will soon return to Singapore for a solo exhibition titled Water, Colour, Recordings, at the Art Plural Gallery in September. In this exhibition, she will showcase seven artworks from her latest series titled Couleur du Temps. Prices range from S$14,500 to S$18,000.

""Couleur du temps" means "colour of time" and also "colour of the weather". In French the word "temps" means both time and weather and I like this idea that my work is dealing with both," says the artist. "I'm very excited about this exhibition because this series draws a lot of inspiration from Asia and Asian artists, such as Japanese gardens or from traditional Chinese landscapes, or contemporary artists like Xu Longsen. So for me it totally makes sense to show it in Singapore," she adds.
